Mills target price rises for Southern European rebar; wire rod prices stable

By India-Inés Levy - Thursday 06 June

High input costs and a lack of feedstock scrap availability pushed prices up in the Southern European rebar market in the week to Wednesday June 5.

Fastmarkets assessed the price for steel reinforcing bar (rebar) domestic, exw Italy at €660-675 ($718-734) per tonne on Wednesday, up by €10-15 per tonne from €650-660 per tonne a week earlier.

Steel mills targeted small price increases at the beginning of the week, with market participants accepting the higher offers due to slightly improved demand and a deficit of scrap.

International scrap prices have remained largely supported week on week.

Fastmarkets' calculation of the daily index for steel scrap HMS 1&2 (80:20 mix) North Europe origin, cfr Turkey was $376.85 per tonne on Wednesday, up from $375.16 per tonne on May 30.

Fresh transactions for steel scrap in Turkey amid improved domestic finished long steel sales in the region have kept prices elevated. And scrap supply has tightened as a result of Turkish appetite, Fastmarkets reported this week.

Fastmarkets' price assessment for steel reinforcing bar (rebar), domestic, delivered, Spain was €645-670 per tonne on Wednesday up by €10-15 per tonne from €635-655 per tonne.

Fastmarkets' price assessment for steel wire rod (mesh quality), domestic, delivered Southern Europe was €625-635 per tonne on Wednesday stable week on week.

Declining NBS index weighs down on Chinese ferro-alloys market

By Jessica Long - Thursday 06 June

A declining index for construction business activity in May from China's National Bureau of Statistics (NBS) has put downward pressure on China's ferro-alloys markets, including ferro-silicon, vanadium and tungsten, sources told Fastmarkets on Thursday June 6.

According to the NBS data, the sub-index for construction business activity was 54.4% in May, down by 1.9% from 56.3% in April, while the sub-index for new construction orders was 44.1% in May, down by 1.2% from 45.3% in April.

The declining index for construction business activity and China's recent announcement to further restrict the crude steel output in 2024 will put downward pressure on rebar demand in the country, sources told Fastmarkets.

Fastmarkets' daily price assessment for steel reinforcing bar (rebar) domestic, ex-whs Eastern China was 3,500-3,520 yuan ($483-486) per tonne on Wednesday June 5, down by 50 yuan per tonne from 3,550-3,570 yuan per tonne on May 31.

"The declining construction activity index in May indicates there is less demand for rebar, which also dragged down spot rebar prices," a China-based rebar trader said.

China's export ferro-silicon prices edged lower in line with the bearish rebar market sentiment, sources said.

Ferro-silicon is a raw material mainly used in steel production, sources said.

Fastmarkets' price assessment for ferro-silicon, 75% Si min, in-whs China was 7,600-7,800 yuan ($1,049-1,076) per tonne on Wednesday, same as a week earlier.

Fastmarkets' price assessment for ferro-silicon, 75% Si min, export, fob China was $1,350-1,400 per tonne on Wednesday, widening downward by $20 per tonne from $1,370-1,400 per tonne two weeks earlier.

Fastmarkets' price assessment for ferro-silicon, 75% Si min, cif Japan — which covers Chinese material shipped to Japan — was $1,360-1,410 per tonne on Wednesday, widening downward by $20 per tonne from $1,380-1,410 per tonne two weeks earlier.

"Even though China's domestic ferro-silicon price remained unchanged, market sentiment worsened because many ferro-silicon market participants do not have a positive outlook on the future market conditions because more and more ferro-silicon producers have resumed their production and increased the supply," a China-based ferro-silicon trader said. "The overall weak rebar prices also cannot underpin those for upstream ferro-silicon."

The most-traded September ferro-silicon futures price on the Zhengzhou Commodity Exchange closed at 7,302 yuan per tonne on June 6, a decrease of 11.3% from 8,234 yuan per tonne on May 31.

"The ferro-silicon futures price rose dramatically following the country's plan to reduce carbon emission and restrict high energy consumption industries, but after that day, the ferro-silicon futures dropped for several days since many market participants thought that announcement failed to improve the fundamental steel demand," a second China-based ferro-silicon trader said.

In addition, China's vanadium prices also went down due to declining construction activities, with less active market enquiries and deals, sources said.
