Bids from Vietnam – the biggest market for Chinese HRC exports – were $505 per tonne CFR for SS400/Q235 and Q195 HRC of 3mm base, down from $515 per tonne CFR a week earlier.

Vietnamese bids for SAE1006 materials were around $515 per tonne CFR, down from traded levels of $535 per tonne CFR heard in the preceding week.

Freight rates from China to Vietnam remained stable at around $13 per tonne, according to traders.

These bids were about about $15 per tonne lower than costs for sourcing from Chinese mills and too aggressive to go short, a trader in southern China said.

Small Chinese mills kept their offers for SS400/Q235 and Q195 HRC of 3mm base unchanged at $510-515 per tonne FOB China on Tuesday, unchanged from Monday.

Market participants indicated that best offers from large mills are estimated at $515-520 per tonne FOB China for SS400/Q235 materials of 3mm base if there are firm bids.

Bids from overseas buyers were generally limited likely because most buyers were in wait-and-see mode in the wake of the recent decline in Chinese steel prices, a trader in eastern China said.

Market chatter

“Weak demand is the biggest reason behind the recent pullback in [Chinese] steel prices. Prices are likely to extend their decline to find a bottom if there are no bullish signals such as stimulus expectations to underpin the prices,” an industry analyst in eastern China said.

Shanghai Futures Exchange

The most-traded SHFE October HRC futures contract closed at 3,711 yuan per tonne on Tuesday, up by 5 yuan per tonne from Monday's closing price of 3,706 yuan per tonne.

Rebar news

China’s domestic rebar prices fall; arbitrage trading activity rises

By Jessica Zong - Tuesday 09 July

China’s domestic rebar prices fell on Tuesday July 9 amid weaker end-user demand, though lower prices helped stimulate arbitrage transactions, sources said.

Domestic

Fastmarkets’ daily price assessment for steel reinforcing bar (rebar) domestic, ex-whs Eastern China was 3,310-3,330 yuan ($455-458) per tonne on Tuesday, down by 20 yuan per tonne from 3,330-3,350 yuan per tonne on Monday July 9.

Adverse weather conditions like heavy rainfall along Changjiang River and high temperatures in east China continued to weigh down on end-user demand for rebar, which ultimately led to the dip in prices on Tuesday, sources said.

A trader in Shanghai said contractors have lowered their demand for rebar by about 30% in early July compared with a month earlier.

The dip in spot market prices led to a bigger gap with the October rebar futures contract prices, which led to an increase in arbitrage trading activity, sources said.

The gap between spot and futures prices was 180-200 yuan per tonne over the past few days, higher than the workable price of 100 yuan per tonne, a second trader in Shanghai said,

Market Chatter

“Property developers have tight capital flows and they have difficulties paying project contractors on time. Therefore, contractors are very cautious on buying raw materials, including rebar. They are not building rebar inventories or paying high prices for rebar,” an industry analyst said.

Billet

Fastmarkets’ daily price assessment for steel billet domestic, exw Tangshan, Northern China was 3,280 yuan per tonne including value-added tax on Tuesday, down by 30 yuan per tonne from 3,310 yuan per tonne on Monday.

Shanghai Futures Exchange

The most-traded October rebar futures contract closed at 3,515 yuan per tonne on Tuesday, up by 12 yuan per tonne from Monday’s close of 3,503 yuan per tonne.
