Market chatter

"It's hard to tell how the [dollar/yuan] exchange rates will fare. We expect the exchange rate to hit the key 7 yuan per dollar-mark in the short term. The future market will depend on the economic recession situations [in the US]," a second trader in eastern China said.

Shanghai Futures Exchange

The most-traded January HRC futures contract closed at 4,017 yuan per tonne on Tuesday, down by 30 yuan per tonne from Monday's close of 4,047 yuan per tonne.

US plate buyers debate Nucor Tuscaloosa expansion strategy

By Alesha Alkaff, Melissa VanDervort - Tuesday 21 November

Nucor's planned expansion of its thin-plate capabilities in Tuscaloosa County, Alabama, could represent a future shuffling of capacity, market sources told Fastmarkets this week.

Nucor announced a $280 million expansion project at its Tuscaloosa mill to expand its thinner, high-quality plate range. The project will start by the end of the year and will be fully operational by the summer of 2027, according to the announcement.

Nucor's Plate Mill Group currently has production facilities in Brandenburg, Kentucky; Hertford County, North Carolina; and Tuscaloosa, Alabama. The facilities have an annual capacity of 3 million tons of cut-to-length and discrete plate, with operating centers in the US, Canada and Mexico.

In May, Nucor closed their plate mill in Longview, Texas. The mill's 100,000 ton annual production was transferred to Nucor's remaining facilities, including the new Brandenburg facility.

A distributor said that the expansion project could signal a future capacity adjustment.

"[Nucor's] focus on lighter gauge makes me wonder if they are considering another facility closure," he said. "No one's expecting a big increase in demand in the light gauge market."

The distributor said that the Brandenburg mill isn't designed around specialty, lighter gauges.

"That's what they use their Hertford mill for," he said. "So if they go through with Tuscaloosa's upgrades, in theory they can make everything."

A Nucor representative said that the Tuscaloosa expansion is a sign of the company's continued dedication to the US plate market.

"We expect to have improved quality to our existing customer base and this is another example of Nucor's dedication to the plate market and our customers," the representative told Fastmarkets.

Earlier this month, US cut-to-length plate prices reached an eight-month low of $1,380 per short ton, marking a notable shift away from prior market stability. This was due to moderate demand and decreasing imported and resold plate prices, coupled with expanded production capacity at Nucor's Brandenburg plate mill. Although Nucor predicted higher production levels in 2024, its recent decision to reduce its prices by $140 per ton has brought more downside risks to US plate prices.

Another distributor said that Nucor's announcement is "an investment in their future."

"Once demand improves, they will be ready to ship material quickly, and from brand-new, efficient and profitable mills," he said, referencing the opening of Nucor Brandenburg, which produced its first plate products on December 30, 2022.

520 per tonne CFR, which would net back to $475 per tonne FOB Black Sea.

Fastmarkets therefore calculated its steel billet index export, fob Black Sea, CIS at $494 per tonne on November 21, stable day on day but up by $4 per tonne week on week.

Wire rod

Wire rod offers from Russia have recently been limited, but were heard at $550-555 per tonne FOB Black Sea in the week to Tuesday, compared with $540-545 per tonne FOB Black Sea previously.

But an Egyptian customer said the new prices were a bit too elevated.

“China is the benchmark now - offering [wire rod at] $585 per tonne CFR,” he said.

The cost of freight to Egypt from the Black Sea basin is currently around $40-45 per tonne, depending on tonnage, which makes current offers equivalent to $590-600 per tonne CFR.

A trading source dealing with the African market said the workable price was around $520-525 per tonne FOB.

Fastmarkets’ weekly price assessment for steel wire rod \(mesh quality\) export, fob Black Sea, CIS, therefore widened to $525-550 per tonne on November 21, up at the top end of the range from $525-530 per tonne on November 14.
