Rebar news

China's domestic rebar prices flat amid weak demand, low inventories

By Jessica Zong - Wednesday 25 December

China's domestic rebar prices were stable on Wednesday December 25 due to weak demand, but low market inventories, sources told Fastmarkets.

Domestic

Fastmarkets' daily price assessment for steel reinforcing bar (rebar) domestic, ex-whs Eastern China was 3,270-3,290 yuan ($448-451) per tonne on Wednesday, unchanged from Tuesday December 24.

On Wednesday, the demand for rebar was sluggish, with both end users and trade houses showing little interest.

End users cut back on construction activities, which in turn reduced their need for rebar. Trade houses, pessimistic about the future of rebar prices, showed minimal interest in stocking the product.

However, the low inventory levels in the spot market offered some support to rebar prices, with one Shanghai-based trader reporting that his rebar inventory was at its month-to-date low.

Market participants were largely in a holiday mindset and did not anticipate any immediate recovery in demand.

Market Chatter

"There will be some trade houses restocking rebar in January for spring sales, though the quantity might be much lower than past few years. But these trade houses are still waiting for acceptable prices. The gap between traders' ideal prices and steel mills' offers are around 200-300 yuan per tonne," a trader based in Shanghai said.

Billet

Fastmarkets' daily price assessment for steel billet domestic, exw Tangshan, Northern China was 3,060 yuan per tonne including value-added tax on Wednesday, unchanged from the day prior.

Shanghai Futures Exchange

The most-traded May rebar futures contract on the Shanghai Futures Exchange closed at 3,300 yuan per tonne on Wednesday, down by 14 yuan per tonne from the closing price of 3,314 yuan per tonne on Tuesday.
