differential, exw China, which calculates the premium for flat-rolled reduced carbon emissions steel over products produced from the traditional blast furnace-based route and came in at 0-800 yuan ($0-113) per tonne on November 22.

Market chatter

"Market focus has shifted back to the supply-demand fundamentals in the short term, which is a low season for demand and weighing on the market. But the central economic work conference and the Political Bureau meeting in December, as well as the performance of winter stockpiling for steel products among traders, should be closely watched for its impact on the market," an industry analyst in eastern China said.

Shanghai Futures Exchange

The most-traded January SHFE HRC futures contract closed at 3,471 yuan per tonne on Tuesday, up by 8 yuan per tonne from the closing price of 3,463 yuan per tonne on Monday.

SHFE base metals prices in mixed movement; zinc records biggest gain

By Laura Li - Tuesday 26 November

Base metals prices on the Shanghai Futures Exchange (SHFE) were in mixed movement during morning trading on Tuesday November 26, with zinc posting the largest gain.

The most-traded SHFE base metals prices, on a per tonne basis, at 10.30am Shanghai time, compared with the 3pm close on Monday.

- Copper (January): 73,830 yuan ($10,197), down by 0.44%
- Aluminium (January): 20,565 yuan, down by 0.27%
- Zinc (January): 25,095 yuan, up by 0.80%
- Lead (January): 17,155 yuan, down by 0.20%
- Nickel (January): 128,200 yuan, up by 0.75%
- Tin (January): 242,190 yuan, down by 0.04% (Prices inclusive of 13% value-added tax)

Zinc was the biggest gainer on Tuesday, up by 0.80% to trade at 25,095 yuan per tonne.

The galvanized metal's price rose in line with a surge seen on the London Metal Exchange (LME) on Monday, when the LME three-month zinc futures price closed at $3,020 per tonne, up by 1.80% from the previous trading day.

Persistent tightness in raw material availability of zinc concentrate also continued to lend support to the metal's price amid historically low level of treatment charges (TCs), sources told Fastmarkets.

China imported more than 0.33 million tonnes of zinc ore and concentrates in October, down by 18.20% from September, according to the country's latest customs data.

Fastmarkets' twice-monthly assessment of the zinc spot concentrate TC, cif China was $(50) - (20) per tonne on Friday November 8, unchanged since August 30 and marking the lowest level since the assessment was launched in September 2014.

Meanwhile, copper was the largest loser on Tuesday, down by 0.44% to trade at 73,830 yuan per tonne.

The dip in prices was largely due to slow demand and a gloomy outlook amid production losses, which has dampened interest among copper cathode market participants in signing annual contracts for 2025, sources said.

Fastmarkets assessed the daily benchmark copper grade A cathode premium, cif Shanghai at $40-56 per tonne on Monday, unchanged from Friday November 22.

US domestic plate market remains at standstill; uptick in demand expected in Q1 2025: sources

By Melissa VanDervort - Tuesday 26 November

Plate market participants reported more of the same three weeks after the election of Donald Trump shook up the greater steel industry, with sources anticipating a substantial uptick early in the first quarter of 2025.

Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for steel cut-to-length plate carbon grade, fob mill US was $42 per hundredweight ($840 per short ton) on Tuesday November 26, flat from November 19 but down by 2.33% from $43 per cwt on November 12.

Inputs were collected in a range of $41-43 per cwt, representing deals and assessments of general market activity.

The domestic plate market remains in limbo three weeks after the US presidential election, with persistent soft demand in the lead up to the typically slow holiday season.

"We haven't seen any movement on plate – seems really quiet [in the market right now]," a Midwestern distributor said.

With the tumultuous election in the rearview of the larger steel industry, domestic plate sources remain optimistic for a significant rebound expected just around the corner in 2025.

Sources anticipate a substantial uptick in demand after the doldrums of the impending holiday season, but the market is expected to remain quiet for the remainder of 2024.

Market participants expect this rebound in demand to start after President-elect Trump's forthcoming inauguration in January 2025.

Lead times were reported at three to four weeks.

Asia billet prices fall further amid weak buying sentiment from end users

By Paul Lim, Sam Li Xiaoyu - Tuesday 26 November

Asian steel billet prices were weaker on Tuesday November 26 due to buyers staying on the sidelines instead of actively purchasing, sources told Fastmarkets.

Fastmarkets' twice-weekly price assessment for steel billet, import, cfr Manila was $470 per tonne on Tuesday, falling by $5-10 per tonne from $475-480 per tonne on Thursday.

Fastmarkets' price assessment for steel billet, import, cfr Indonesia was $465-470 per tonne on Tuesday, falling by $5-10 per tonne from $470-480 per tonne on Thursday.

The yuan stabilized against the US dollar, maintaining 7.236 yuan to $1 on November 26 compared with 7.242 yuan to $1 on November 24, according to foreign exchange data service provider Oanda.com.

A major Indonesian blast furnace-based steelmaker reduced its offer for 3/4sp-grade billet by $5 per tonne to $465 per tonne FOB Indonesia since Friday November 22.

It had also slashed its offers for wire rod by $10 per tonne to $490 per tonne FOB the same day.

Short-selling offers have re-emerged in the spot market, with Chinese 5sp-grade materials heard offered at $470-475 per tonne CFR Southeast Asia. Chinese sellers were offering such export cargoes at $450 per tonne FOB.

Some sellers have attempted to bolster prices, maintaining offers at $485 per tonne CFR Southeast Asia in line with FOB Indonesia offers by the major Indonesian steelmaker.

However, in Manila, offers for Chinese 5sp-grade billets were heard at $470 per tonne CFR.

Buying interest remained low, with few bids heard in the market.

"The downstream market is still weak. Rebar prices and demand are too low," a trader source in Manila said.

In Indonesia, offers for Chinese 5sp-grade billets were at $470-475 per tonne CFR, with buyers indicating purchasing interest at $460-465 per tonne CFR.

It came to light this week that there was a trade concluded at around $475 per tonne CFR Indonesia last week for 30,000 tonnes of Chinese billets, purportedly to a construction steel producer.

Chinese and Indonesian blast furnace-based billets remain out of reach of buyers, traders said.

"There remains a bid-sell gap now, it's not easy to fix any trades," a trader source in east Asia told Fastmarkets.

In Taiwan, buyers were bidding at $460 per tonne CFR, resulting in a $10-15 per tonne gap with offers from sellers. Offers for 3/4sp-grade materials were heard at $470 per tonne CFR Taiwan.
