“With spreads between primes and BPI being so narrow, [North American] mills prefer BPI as [the carbon] is higher and the [iron] yield is better. In this kind of environment HBI will see higher discounts from [electric arc furnaces],” the third US source said.

The first US source noted HBI is closer to US No1 busheling prices than to BPI at this point, but that HBI prices trade at 85% of BPI prices currently.

“The 85% should make sense for the price and put it right near [US Midwest] No1 busheling [prices],” the first US source said.

As a result, hot-briquetted iron, fob New Orleans prices rose to $385-415 per tonne in the week to December 27, up by $5-15 per tonne from $380-400 per tonne the week before.

US domestic plate prices rise amid mill price hikes, increasing market demand

By Melissa VanDervort - Tuesday 28 January

Domestic plate prices in the US climbed for the first time in over a month on Tuesday January 28, following back-to-back mill price increases from Nucor and SSAB on January 27 and 28.

Fastmarkets' weekly assessment for steel cut-to-length plate carbon grade, fob mill US was $43 per hundredweight ($860 per short ton) on Tuesday January 28, up by 2.38% from $42 per cwt on January 21.

Inputs were collected in a range between $42-48 per cwt, representing deals, offers and assessments of the general market.

Nucor and SSAB both raised domestic plate prices by $60 per short ton ($3 per cwt) in letters to customers on January 27 and 28 respectively.

Plate sources anticipated the increases and said they expect the price hikes to be accepted in the market in the near term, bolstered by an uptick in demand since the beginning of the year.

"Mills are quoting up now, and we are seeing return quotes [slightly higher]. But I don't think folks will rush to place orders at these price points, but at some point in time, inventory values will increase," a distributor said.

Most market participants expect demand to steadily improve throughout the end of the first quarter and into the second quarter of the year.

"Plate prices will rise as we go through 2025 — how much and how fast, we will have to see. But prices don't look to be going backward anytime soon," the distributor said.

Lead times remain at two to three weeks, sources said.

SSAB follows Nucor, raises plate prices by $60 per ton

By Melissa VanDervort - Tuesday 28 January

SSAB Americas raised plate prices by $60 per short ton in a letter to customers on Tuesday January 28, following an identical announcement made by Nucor on Monday January 27.

SSAB raised prices on all plate products — as-rolled, normalized, quenched and tempered, and wide cut-to-length plate products — “by a minimum of $60 per ton, effective immediately on all new orders and non-contract orders, confirmed to ship March 3 and beyond,” according to the letter.

Just a day earlier, Nucor announced it would raise prices on all plate products in a similar letter to customers.

Fastmarkets’ weekly assessment for steel cut-to-length plate carbon grade, fob mill US rose to $43 per hundredweight ($860 per short ton) on Tuesday, up by 2.38% from $42 per cwt on January 21.
