Steel plate news

US domestic plate prices stable amid muted demand

By Melissa VanDervort - Tuesday 12 August

Plate prices in the US were steady on Tuesday August 12, with sources describing a mostly dormant spot market beset by continued weak demand and minimal trading.

Fastmarkets' weekly assessment for steel cut-to-length plate carbon grade, fob mill US was $53 per hundredweight ($1,060 per short ton) on Tuesday, steady from August 5 and down 1.85% from $54 per cwt on July 29.

Inputs were collected in the range of $52-55 per cwt, representing deals heard, offers and assessments of the general spot market.

Demand for domestic plate continues to be spotty, market participants said, with lackluster spot trading widely reported by sources.

"Demand is slow. [There is] not a lot happening right now on the plate side," a buyer said.

"Things have not changed on the plate side," a Midwest distributor said. "Service center demand is fairly weak overall, with no change in sight at the moment."

Sources said that domestic mills are negotiating deals for large-tonnage orders as most buyers continue to take a cautious approach to spot purchases.

"There are deals to be made [in the plate market]," a second distributor said.

"Demand is okay, but I think it's been stable too long and buyers are sitting by the sidelines because they are expecting a [price] decrease. A small decrease would get [buyers] to move and add some inventory."

Some market participants are reporting low stock levels for end users, and sources anticipate an uptick in demand late in the third quarter and beginning of the fourth quarter as buyers begin to replenish depleted inventories.

"[The plate market] is more of the same. We continue to move tons but not at the pace we would like, and we continue to hear inventories remain low," a third distributor said. "[We] hope to see a jump in orders in September."

Lead times are at three to five weeks, according to sources.

Rebar news

China's domestic rebar prices rise despite higher coking coal prices, poor weather conditions

By Jessica Zong - Tuesday 12 August

China's domestic rebar prices rose on Tuesday August 12, despite higher raw material coking coal prices and weak demand for rebar on the back of adverse weather conditions, sources told Fastmarkets.

Sentiment among market participants toward coke prices turned bullish, following chatter from producers on a reduction in output for better air quality, according to sources.

The most-traded January coke futures contract on the Dalian Commodity Exchange closed at 1,812 yuan ($252) per tonne on Tuesday, up by 52.50 yuan per tonne from the closing price of 1,759.50 yuan per tonne on Monday.

Most rebar sellers kept prices stable while a few of them raised prices slightly, sources said.

End user demand for rebar was weak due to heavy rainfall in the major cities of central and north China, as well as high temperatures in east China, sources told Fastmarkets.

Fastmarkets' daily price assessment for steel reinforcing bar (rebar) domestic, ex-whs Eastern China was at 3,260-3,300 yuan per tonne on Tuesday, widening upward by 10 yuan per tonne from 3,260-3,290 yuan per tonne on Monday.

Market Chatter

"Export prices for rebar increased following the increase in China's domestic prices, but buyers have yet to catch up. The export offers are at $495-500 per tonne FOB China, while buyers' bids are $20-30 per tonne lower than offers," a trader based in east China said.

Fastmarkets' calculations of steel reinforcing bar (rebar) index export, fob China main port was at $492 per tonne on Tuesday, up by $4.67 per tonne from $487.33 per tonne a week earlier.

Billet

Fastmarkets' daily price assessment for steel billet domestic, exw Tangshan, Northern China was 3,120 yuan per tonne including value-added tax on Tuesday, up by 20 yuan per tonne from 3,100 yuan per tonne on Monday.

Shanghai Futures Exchange

The most-traded October rebar futures contract on the Shanghai Futures Exchange closed at 3,258 yuan per tonne on Tuesday, up by 8 yuan per tonne from 3,250 yuan per tonne on Monday.
