Steel plate news

US domestic steel plate prices stable in stagnant market

By Melissa VanDervort - Tuesday 22 July

Steel plate prices in the US were steady week on week on Tuesday July 22, with sources continuing to illustrate a muted market dampened by tepid demand and minimal spot trading.

Fastmarkets' weekly assessment for steel cut-to-length plate carbon grade, fob mill US was $55 per hundredweight ($1,100 per short ton) on Tuesday, steady since going down by 1.79% on July 8 from $56 per cwt on July 1.

Inputs were collected in a range of $51-56 per cwt, representing offers and general assessments of the spot market.

The domestic plate market remains static, with sources reporting that ongoing middling demand and lackluster spot trading continue to temper the market.

"Demand [is] not so good [and] supply is ample," a plate distributor said. "[We] need to get through August and September, and then we should see a better market."

A second distributor shared a similar view, saying, "[There is] nothing too exciting to report [in the plate market]. No change in pricing and demand is still relatively soft. We don't see [any] pick-up [in demand happening] until hopefully the fourth quarter."

Buyers continue to exercise cautious purchasing behavior despite dwindling inventory levels in the domestic market, a plate consumer said.

"Demand feels steady but still cautious. I'd characterize it as 'needs-based' buying — no strong signs yet of a broader uptick, although there's definitely chatter [in the market] that inventories are running leaner than usual," the consumer said. "That aligns with what we're hearing from both service centers and end users — buyers are sticking close to the vest and only ordering what's immediately necessary."

A third distributor said they expect an increase in both demand and domestic pricing late in the third quarter and early in the fourth.

"Inventories do remain low, but the market is stable. We do, however, expect demand and [transaction] prices to go up soon once the summer starts coming to an end," the third distributor said.

Lead times were reported at three to five weeks, according to sources.

Rebar news

China's domestic rebar prices hit 7-month peak; sentiment remains cautious

By Jessica Zong - Tuesday 22 July

China domestic rebar prices maintained their uptrend on Tuesday July 22, reaching a seven-month high. Market participants, however remained cautious on the longevity of the trend.

Market participants indicated that the higher spot rebar prices were due to an increase in futures values for coking coal, rather than a change in supply-demand fundamentals.

The most-traded September coking coal futures contract on the Dalian Commodity Exchange hit the limit-up on Tuesday and closed at 1,048.50 yuan ($146.14) per tonne, up by 42.50 yuan per tonne from a closing price of 1,006 yuan per tonne on the preceding day.

The surge in coking-coal prices followed renewed market chatter that China's National Energy Administration (NEA) had instructed any coal mine that exceeded 110% of its officially approved capacity in any single month from January to June 2025 to suspend production immediately for safety rectification.

Traders said the unverified news was enough to ignite a speculative wave in coking-coal futures, which in turn pushed rebar prices higher.

Yet most rebar market participants refused to embrace the uptrend. One trader pointed out that the NEA has not issued any formal notice, adding that the coal-price spike appears to be driven by unconfirmed headlines rather than by any concrete reduction in supply.

A second trader echoed the skepticism, stressing that neither production cuts, nor a rebound in construction demand have altered the underlying fundamentals for rebar.

"The price increase lacks solid support," the second trader said.

Fastmarkets' daily price assessment for steel reinforcing bar (rebar) domestic, ex-whs Eastern China was 3,300-3,330 yuan per tonne on Tuesday, up by 50-60 yuan per tonne from 3,250-3,270 yuan per tonne on Monday July 21.

Market Chatter

"Buyers don't believe the price will keep rising and they don't have strong demand due to unfavorable weather conditions for construction work, so they plan to purchase at low tonnages and wait for price to either stabilize or decrease," an industry analyst said.

Billet

Fastmarkets' daily price assessment for steel billet domestic, exw Tangshan, Northern China was 3,120 yuan per tonne including value-added tax on Tuesday, up by 60 yuan per tonne from 3,060 yuan per tonne on Monday.

Shanghai Futures Exchange

The most-traded October rebar futures contract on the Shanghai Futures Exchange closed at 3,307 yuan per tonne on Tuesday, up by 83 yuan per tonne from 3,224 yuan per tonne on Monday.

Steel slab news

China's June semi-finished steel exports drop vs May; market participants bearish on July exports

By Jessica Zong - Tuesday 22 July

China's exports for semi-finished steel decreased in June compared with May, according to data published by the country's General Administration of Customs (GACC) on Sunday July 20.

Market participants were also negative on the export volumes in June due to high prices, sources said.

The exports for steel billet (Harmonized System code 72071100 and 72072000) and steel slab (Harmonized System code 72071200) totaled 1.15 million tonnes in June, down by 13% from 1.31 million tonnes in May, but up by 276% year on year from 305,456 tonnes in June 2024, according to GACC data.

Turkey was the biggest buyers from China, with 239,587 tonnes, or 21%, of total China's exports.

Indonesia followed and bought 144,180 tonnes, and the Philippines bought 133,858 tonnes, making it the third biggest buyer.

China's export prices for semi-finished steel has kept increasing from June, which weakened the attractiveness of China's cargoes in the international market.

China's 3sp billet prices were at $445-450 per tonne FOB China on Tuesday July 22, compared with $425-430 per tonne FOB early in June.

An exporter based in China indicated that buyers did not accept the higher prices of $445-450 per tonne and no deals have been done over the past few days.

"The exports in July are [likely to be] weaker than June," the exporter said.

A second China-based exporter said, "China's domestic prices are increasing in semis steel and finished steel, but foreign buyers doubt how long the price uptrend will last. They think the prices are boosted by macro policy, but not by the change of supply-demand balance, so they aren't bullish on further price rise."

Fastmarkets' daily assessment for steel billet domestic, exw Tangshan, Northern China was at 3,120 yuan ($435) per tonne on Tuesday, up by 60 yuan per tonne from 3,060 yuan per tonne on Monday and by 220 yuan per tonne from 2,900 yuan per tonne on July 1.
