Steel plate news

US domestic plate prices fall for second straight week in muted market

By Melissa VanDervort - Tuesday 26 August

Plate prices in the US fell week on week on Tuesday August 26 amid continued weak demand and minimal spot trading, sources said.

Fastmarkets' weekly assessment for steel cut-to-length plate carbon grade, fob mill US was $51 per hundredweight ($1,020 per short ton) on Tuesday August 26, down by 1.92% from $52 per cwt on August 19.

Inputs were collected in a range of $50.00-52.50 per cwt, representing deals, offers and assessments of the general spot market.

Domestic plate prices have declined week on week amid continued soft demand and sluggish spot trading, sources said, with muted market conditions causing downward price pressure.

"Demand continues to be slow, with the hope [that] prices and demand increase as the summer winds down," a distributor said.

A second distributor shared a similar view, saying, "Yes, [domestic] plate prices are slipping, [and I] hope this is about the end to it, [but] we'll see. [It is a] tough market [right now], demand [is] still soft and supply ample."

Market participants said domestic mills are inclined to negotiate lower pricing on large-tonnage deals in a bid to fill order books and unload inventory, as cautious buying behavior continues in the domestic market.

"Plate mills [are] grasping for service center tons, [and] project tons are doing okay. [It] seems that no one really wants to have inventory on the ground that is unsold," the second distributor said. "[I am] not sure what may change this current scenario [in the market]. Maybe a drop in interest rates may get some folks off the sidelines."

Lead times were at three to four weeks, according to sources.

Rebar news

China's domestic rebar prices drop amid weaker demand; sentiment remains positive

By Jessica Zong - 26 Aug 2025

China's domestic rebar prices decreased on Tuesday August 26 due to weaker end user demand and losses in the futures market, but market sentiment for September remained positive, sources said.

End-user demand for rebar weakened in many cities of China due to the bad weather conditions, including heavy rain in northern China and high temperatures in central and southwestern China.

The weather conditions in some parts of eastern China were favorable for construction work on Tuesday, but buyers reduced their demand for rebar after futures contract prices dropped.

Fastmarkets' daily price assessment for steel reinforcing bar (rebar) domestic, ex-whs Eastern China was 3,150-3,180 yuan ($440-444) per tonne on Tuesday, down by 20-30 yuan per tonne from 3,180-3,200 yuan per tonne on Monday August 25.

Market participants are not bearish on rebar market, for the remainder of August, but a trader based in Shanghai expected demand recovery in September when the weather is typically good for construction work in most parts of China.

This optimism has made sellers less eager to sell stocked rebar cargoes and more reluctant to cut prices.

Market Chatter

"Several investment banks now expect the Federal Reserve to cut rates later this year—an outlook that is feeding expectations of higher inflation and lending support to commodities such as rebar. But most participants are holding off on any moves until they see how end-user demand evolves in September," an industry analyst said.

Billet

Fastmarkets' daily price assessment for steel billet domestic, exw Tangshan, Northern China was 3,020 yuan per tonne including value-added tax on Tuesday, down by 20 yuan per tonne from 3,040 yuan per tonne on Monday.
